Dear Father Time,

The days you have calendared for us in our current school year have been momentous, with history-making episodes crowding one another in swift succession. You have taught us to face life courageously, to surmount sadness in the loss of a great leader and to show intelligent restraint in the celebration of a partial victory.

During the time when life should be most promising you have demanded that many of our group leave the carefree high school days behind and regiment themselves in a global war, where they're now fighting on land and sea and in the air.

Our class of 1945 has been reduced by the loss of eighteen students to the armed services. We proudly pay homage to these boys who, because they are now members of Uncle Sam's forces, will be unable to participate in our commencement activities: Art Theisman, class president; La Verne Beener, Okie Conrad, Robert Conrad, Donald Diedrick, Loren Elness, Edmund Faust, Robert Klaus, Hubert La Pole, George Michael, Gerald Ostrander, Jack Page, Kenneth Skene, Daniel Starr, Andrew Tidemann, Don Turner, and Leland Untiedt.

And for Leo Hormuth, a former member of our class, who paid "the last full measure of devotion", we place a gold star on our service roll.

The Class of '45

Around the Town

There are hundreds of cities in the United States: cities of industry, of business and of beauty. Every one of these cities is America — every person an American. Our city is a typical Uncle Sam's home town. The wheels of progress move in some fifty-odd factories; thousands of boys are serving their country; war loan drives go over the top. This is our town.

ELECTRIC

In the last hundred years our city has progressed from a prairie post to a metropolis. The old Waterloo is a thing of the past, with definite trends toward a still brighter future. We have a new airfield under construction that will connect our city with the principal cities of adjoining states.

Our town houses the largest privately owned packing plant in the world and also a large branch of the earth's finest farm machinery corporation. Since the war, these industrial plants have been producing tank parts instead of tractors, meat for men in service and casings for shells.

Our

Fourth Street is the Fifth Avenue of our home town, where we trek to the movies, to shop and often even to work.

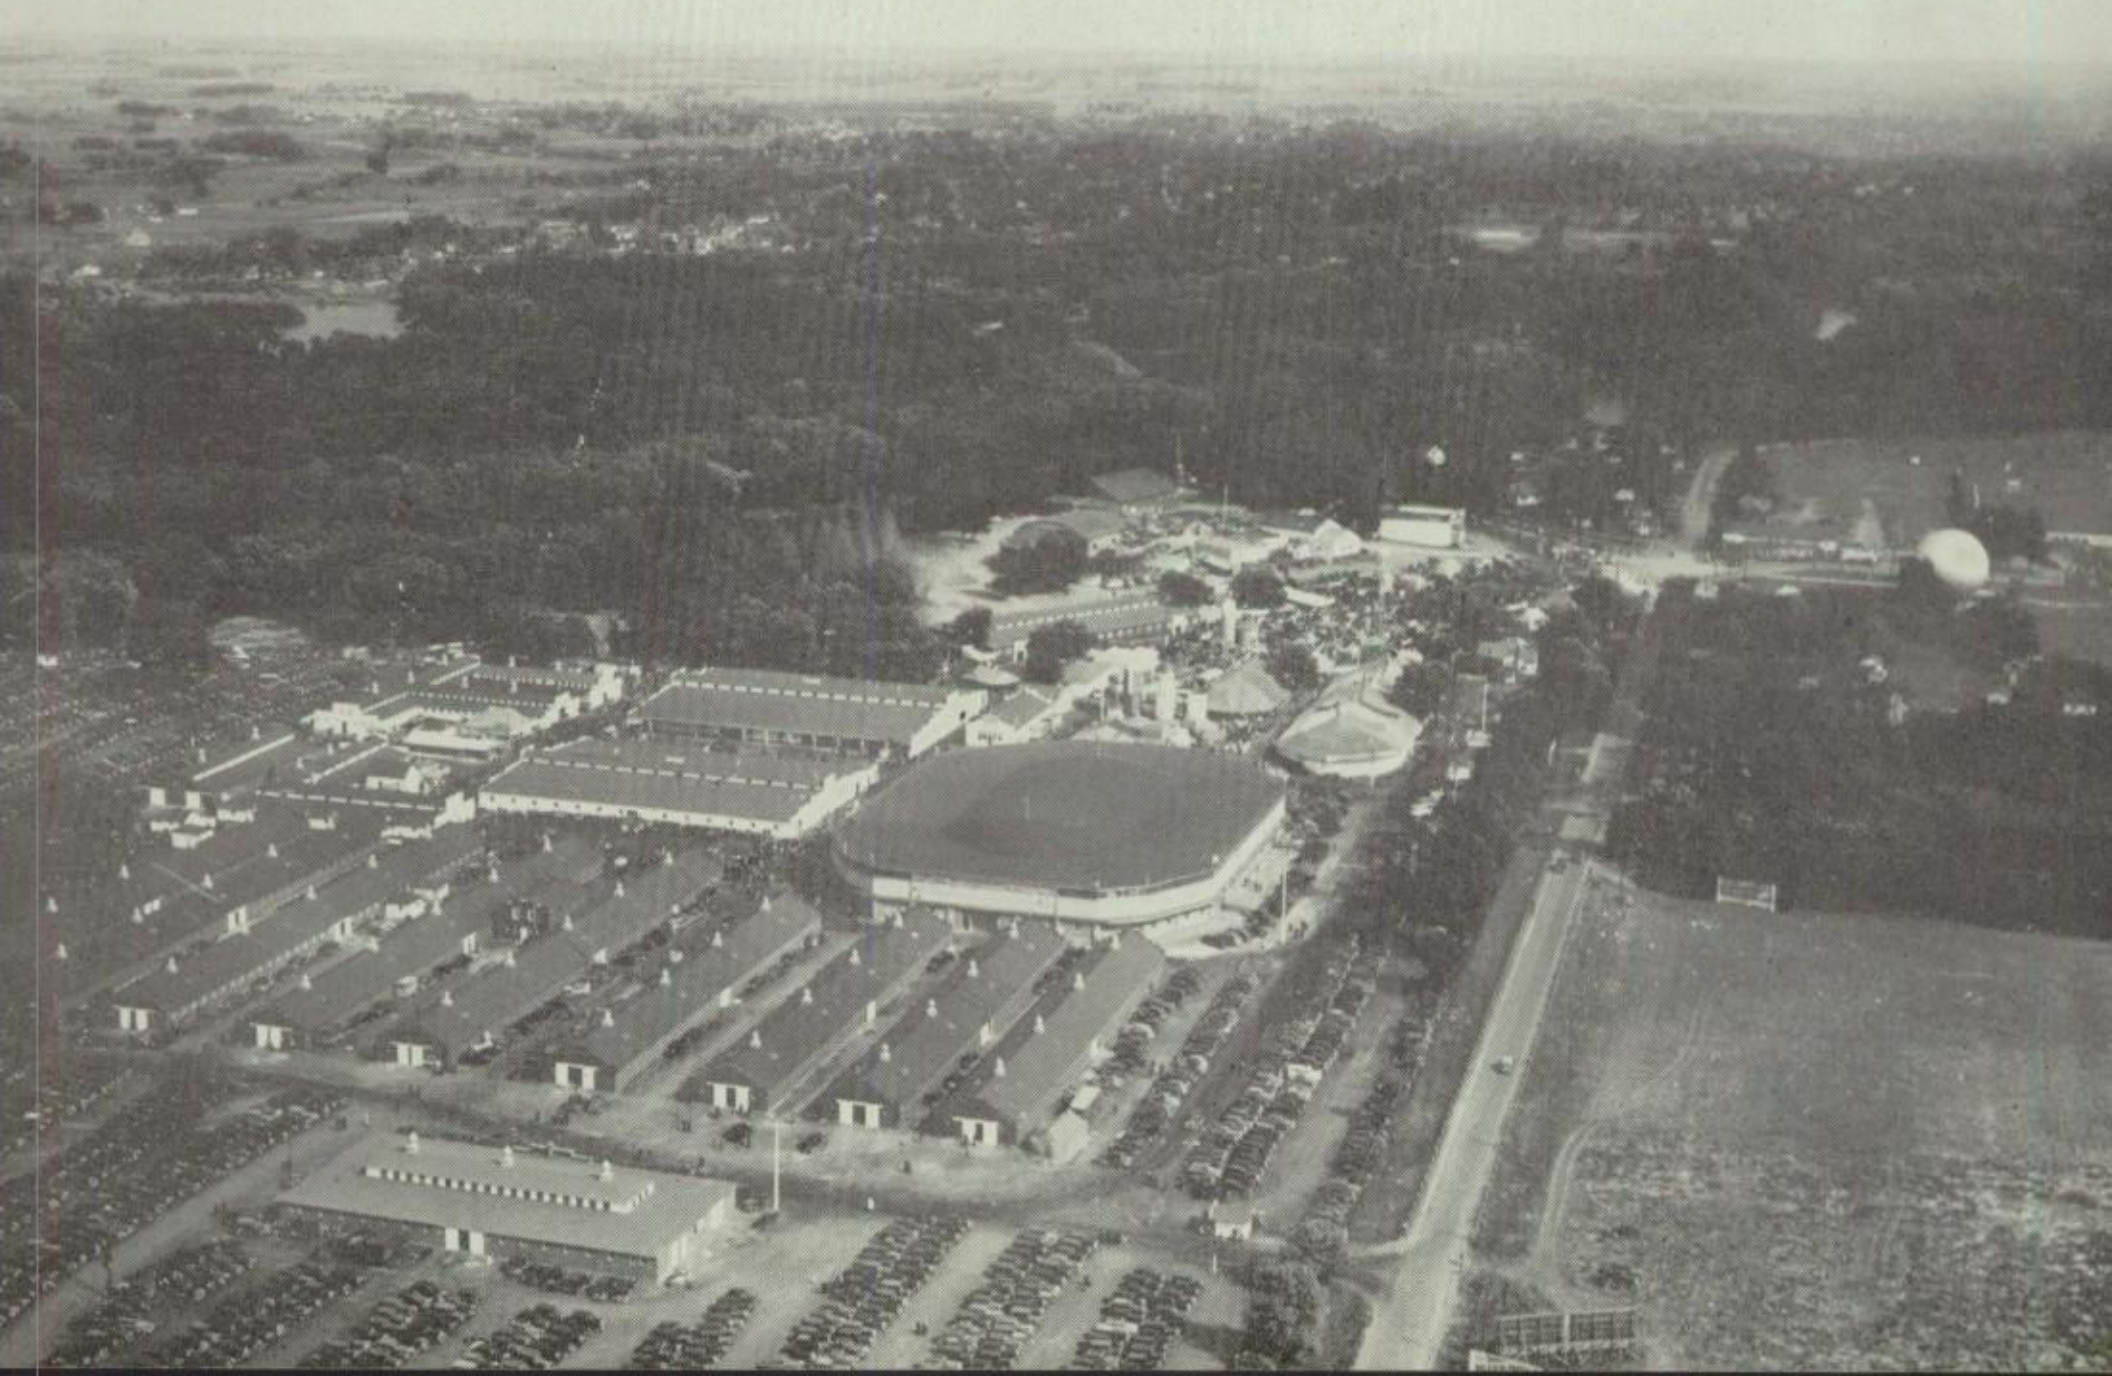
Yes, our town is war-conscious, as is every other American city, town or village these days. Three-fourths of the high school students employed during the past summer were doing work directly connected with the war effort. Even girls and housewives contributed many hours to work on farms and in factories.

The war has not changed our city so very much, though. We are still the same friendly, enthusiastic, growing community, with the same hard-working people giving their all.

This is our city.

City

Set in the rich, verdant prairie land of the midwest, Waterloo boasts a famous Dairy Cattle Congress and International Horse Show, which draws exhibitors and spectators from a wide area.



Our Homes

In more than 500 homes on the east side of the Cedar, five mornings of the week, there's a rush and a scramble to get into togs and off to High and Vine Streets before the 8:45 bell. From these homes come teen-agers representing twenty-one different ancestral backgrounds with German and English predominating.

When the first family built its log cabin on the banks of the Cedar in 1845, they founded the community which in only a century can boast almost 16,000 homes.

Parallel with the development of city homes has been the growth and modernization of the rural areas. Now 10% of our students drive from two to ten miles along rich Iowa farm land in their daily trips to East High.

From this varied home background we modern American youth find a common ground of understanding as important members of our school community. All of us gain a wealth of appreciation from the mere association with others who may differ from us even in principles and credos.

Through our experiences here in high school we hope to learn how to build even better homes than those from which we've come, for we are the future homemakers of Waterloo.

CENTER: One of the many rural homes from which come present East High students.

BOTTOM: Waterloo's residential area on the east side of the river spells home to the majority of Eastonians.

Our Schools

Foremost in the minds of early colonists in America and of pioneers in Black Hawk County has been the desire that the youth learn readin', writin' and 'rithmetic.

Though the first public school in Black Hawk County was built in Cedar Falls, the first high school on the east side of the Cedar was constructed in 1875 in the site of the present East High School. The first graduating class in 1877 numbered three students. This year 277 students are completing their high school days at East.

Since 1877 styles have changed, courses of study have developed, athletics and extra-curricular activities have evolved, but youthful enthusiasm and sincere friendliness still characterize Eastonians.

Today Waterloo Public Schools are training us students to think for ourselves, to be alert to current affairs and to evaluate our own activities. Significant of the earnestness with which we can weigh and consider was our decision to remain in school on V-E Day in recognition of the fact that the great task of winning the war was only half-way achieved. Truly we are a democracy, where the intelligent will of the people rules.

Around the Halls

Youth in the quest for knowledge have been walking around the halls of East High for a quarter of a century, while we, the class of 1945, have called them ours for the brief span of three years. In our search for insight into the mysteries of life we have had the inestimable advantage of the inspired leadership of the board of education, the administration and the faculty. The youth of today are repeatedly charged with being soft, carefree and irresponsible. We shall prove to you, Father Time, that we are leaving these halls with the determination and courage so long characteristic of East High's graduates.

Foresighted Planners

SEATED: A. D. Donnell, Jack M. Logan, Charles S. McKinstry, E. A. Ralston, Willard Lohnes

STANDING: Phillips Taylor, E. P. Horslund, Merle Parr, Wm. A. Dewees

The experiences of each student in the Waterloo Public School are the direct result of the careful and often seemingly unrewarded planning of the Board of Education. Upon their shoulders fall many duties which the community so frequently takes for granted.

The officers of the board include Charles McKinstry, president; E. A. Ralston, secretary, and Wm. A. Dewees, treasurer. Meetings are held the second Wednesday in every month at 7:30.

This year the teachers' retirement plan, worked out in co-operation with a committee from the Waterloo Teachers Association, was introduced to the community and accepted in a city-wide election. The second major project discussed was the necessity of additional post-war junior high buildings. One of the greatest problems connected with such an undertaking is the difficulty of seeing far enough into the future to incorporate in the plans the needs of the school children of today and tomorrow. To that task the present board is directing its resources.

Miss Lorraine Rose and Evelyn Doyen, student assistant, find correspondence and checking details among their daily responsibilities.

With Accuracy and Efficiency

E. A. Ralston fills the position of secretary of the Board of Education. Assisting him in the numerous duties of his office is Mrs. Adah Train. Miss Ruth Van Fleet is the bookkeeper in this office. Taking care of the attendance records and follow-up work is Mrs. Josephine Higley. As city storekeeper, Fred J. Miller has charge of supplies for the district.

In Principal Charles Hoffman's offices, Miss Geneva Nay directs the varied duties necessary to keep mechanical details of the school running smoothly. Betty Lou Ellingson works as assistant part of each day.

The secretarial work in Superintendent Jack Logan's office is handled by Miss Lorraine Rose. Assisting her is Evelyn Doyen, senior commercial student.

Betty Ellingson, part-time co-op student, and Miss Geneva Nay pause from routine of office activities.

Superintendent Jack M. Logan

Challengers of Youth

As superintendent of Waterloo schools, Jack M. Logan has always shown the utmost confidence in the ability of American youth to forge ahead and accomplish what at first seemed almost impossible. Seeing unlimited potentialities in students, he inspires them to strive to reach ever higher goals and to attempt to achieve success in whatever they undertake.

Because of his stimulating confidence in them, East High students feel that they must prepare themselves to live constructively in today's world.

Charles L. Hoffman, principal of East High, has helped to establish East High School as one of the most democratic student bodies in the country. He especially encourages students to take the initiative in all school activities.

Because of his high academic standards, Eastonians are more conscious of what education should mean and do for them.

Presenting a challenge to young people, he seeks to promote a well oriented student body who understand their places in the scheme of things.

Principal Charles L. Hoffman

Pedagogs a la Moderne

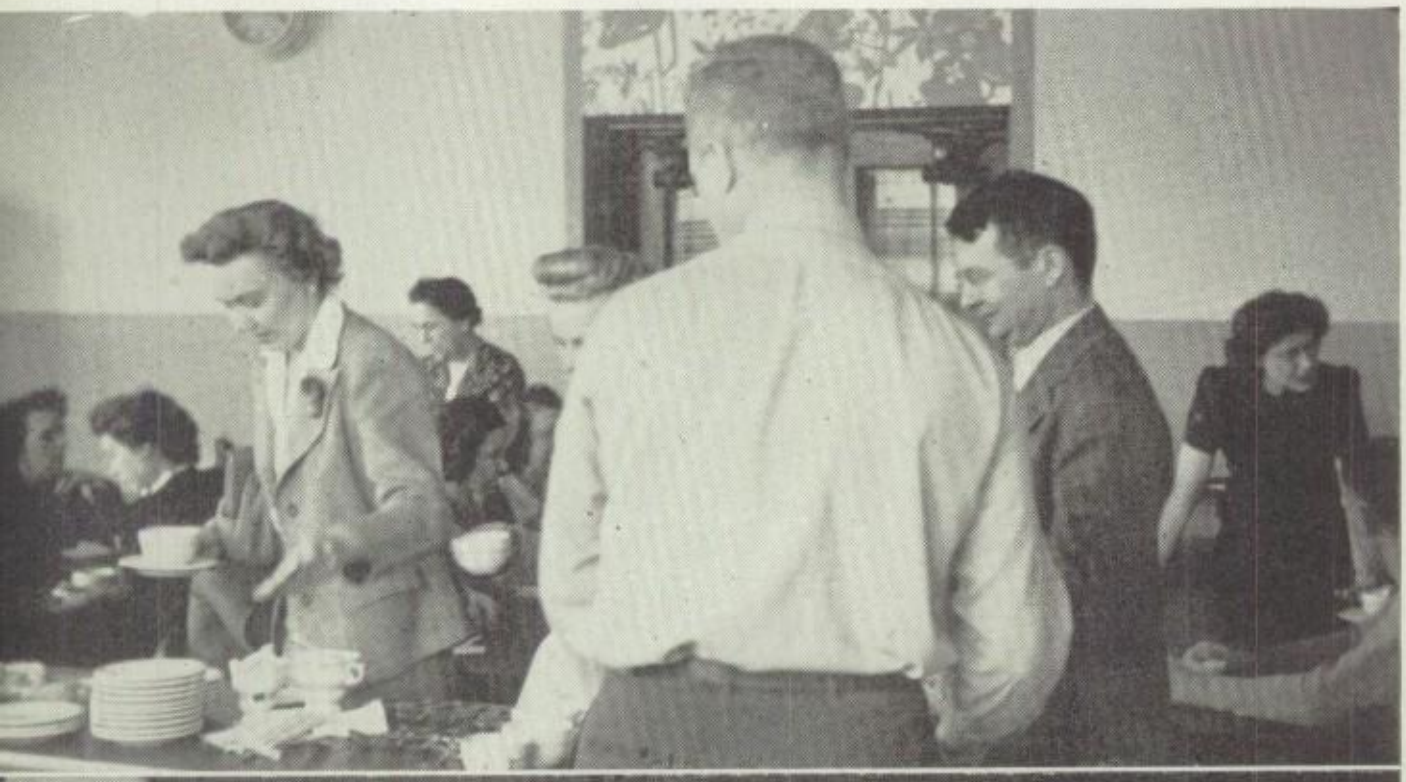
Friendliness and co-operation in student-teacher relations have contributed to East's goal of a truly democratic school.

Alert to ever-changing trends in education, East's faculty is constantly striving for professional advancement. Taking the initiative in directing post-war planning has been the guidance committee, composed of representatives from each department of instruction. Under the chairmanship of Leonard Raffensperger they have been holding semi-weekly meetings for discussing problems of student orientation and teacher-pupil-parent contacts.

In addition, the faculty at its regular weekly meetings has considered problems posed by the publication of the Educational Policies Commission, "Education for All American Youth."

Two faculty members, Miss Lillian Enlow and Mark Flanders, received outstanding recognition by winning first place in a state newspaper contest on how to use a newspaper in the schools. Several of East's teachers held offices in the Waterloo Teachers Association.

Social life for the faculty group this year included picnics and Wednesday night coffees, at which various members have served as hosts and hostesses. These friendly get-togethers provide a chance for informality and closer association resulting in a better understanding and a higher caliber work.



Wednesday after 4:00 p.m. the faculty relax and chat at the informal coffees held in the homemaking room. This one finds Coach and Mrs. Leonard Raffensperger playing host and hostess.

Regular Tuesday night faculty meetings stimulate professional growth and gives opportunities to confer on administrative and guidance problems.

Getting in Stride

Representatives Ralph Schauer and Carmen Lewis have helped Miss Florence Black's 10B homeroom take its place in East High. The members came out readily for the different clubs, athletics and musical activities.

Occupying positions of leadership in Miss Marjorie Laubscher's 10B homeroom were president, Jim Murray; vice-president, Jack Nasher; student council representative, Leila Untiedt; stamp representative, Mardell Holley and secretary, Wilma Smith.

Miss Marie Campbell's homeroom has a commendable record in stamp sales, having made over 90 per cent every week. Their stamp representative for the first semester was Clarence Wentworth. Succeeding him the last semester was Monica Rechtfertig.

Student council representative for the first semester was Marjorie Eickelberg, and the representative second semester was Don Smith. Tony Loveall, winner of a minor letter in football last fall, was president of the homeroom. There are two major letter winners in the homeroom, Chuck Thorne and Don Smith. Chuck earned his letter in basketball, Don, in wrestling.

Onward We Go

Miss Lillian Enlow's 10A homeroom was well represented in the various activities of East High. Many of the boys went out for basketball, track, baseball and wrestling. One of their members, Don Head, belongs to the Trojan Club.

Their homeroom was interested not only in athletics, but in scholastic and musical achievement as well. Two persons participated in the League of Nations contest. The room also had members in the band, orchestra and choral groups.

The first semester student council representative was Lee Davis; Danny Balabon was alternate. Second semester Bob Snowden was representative and Edytha Davis was alternate. Stamp representatives were Jewel McDonald and Donald Sage.

The president of Mrs. Genevieve Madsen's 10A homeroom, Roger Weaver, directed the activities necessary for the organization. He was assisted by Virginia Cook in the capacity of secretary. As stamp representative, Richard Deyo had Mrs. Madsen's homeroom above ninety per cent in stamp and bond sales every week. Acting as representative to student council was Mary Forney, who was also on the social and ushering committees.

Most members of this homeroom have been in some extra-curricular activity around the school such as swing show, band, orchestra, glee club, Friendship, Camera Club, and Art Club.

The Future's Ours

Ivan Warm officiated in Leonard Raffensperger's 10A homeroom. Assisting him were vice-president, Jack Molhoek; secretary, Betty Hackett; stamp representative, Dorothy Smith. Bill Lemke and Jim Barnes kept them in contact with school issues through serving on the student council.

Dorothy Smith urged everyone to buy bonds and stamps. Everyone responded by boosting sales over ninety per cent every week.

They were well represented in the extra-curricular activities. Track, baseball, football, basketball, Hi-Y, and wrestling have called many of the boys, while Friendship and dramatics have beckoned to some of the girls.

The discussion leaders of Miss Grata Thorne's 10A homeroom were Avis Ritchie, president and Juanita Dale, student council representative, who had a difficult time in working everything into the regular fifteen minute period. Ordering and selling stamps and bonds was Barbara Glasson's particular responsibility.

Striving for Distinction

In Miss Elva Tucker's 10A homeroom the officers were changed second semester in order to give more members of the homeroom experience in leading organizations properly. During the first semester the homeroom chose the following members to direct them: student council representative, Glenita Dale; alternate, Rosmond Jensen; stamp representative, Gene Raffensperger. The second semester's officers were: student council representative, Gene Raffensperger; alternate, Norene Gilbert; stamp representative, Bill Cooper.

Discussions during the homeroom period were centered around current problems of the school as suggested by the pupils, the student council, the bulletins and social activities.

George Leebl's homeroom had members in numerous school activities. It was represented in the Trojan Club, Friendship Club, "A" Choir, band, Art Club, Apprentice Masquers, bulletin board, social, and auditorium committees.

Jack Geist was the student council representative and Dick Diekmann, the alternate. Homeroom President Henry Bruns was assisted by Bob Hein in keeping the homeroom high in war stamp purchases. Darlene Beard was the official bulletin-reader, and Frances Allman served as secretary.

Discussions were held frequently on various topics that came to the attention of the students through their wide interests in current affairs.

In Quest of Competence

After every student council meeting Bill Van Eman, student council representative from Hugh Logan's 11B homeroom, promptly brought back the report and if there were any problems to be solved, he led the discussion. In case he was absent, John McKee, his alternate, substituted.

Every Tuesday morning Walter Marx and Jack Rigdon took orders for stamp and bond purchases for the homeroom, selling them Wednesday morning.

Room 109, Miss Marguerite Blough's homeroom, has established a fine record. It was divided into five committees, namely: publicity, morning activities, stamps, sports, and citizenship. These committees were headed by Don Adams, Evelyn Huck, Bob Brunstein, Bob Beener and Joan Conklin.

During the first semester, Norman Carlson was the student council representative and Bob Anderson was alternate, but for the last semester, Bob Beener was representative and Nan Herwig was alternate.

Norman Crossley and Bob Beener were president and secretary. They turned the homeroom over to Evelyn Huck, president, and Pat Callan, secretary, for the second semester.

From this room came three nominees for next year's council presidency.

Seniority Ahead

Under the leadership of Ed Gibson, sales of war bonds and stamps in Mark Flanders' 11A homeroom had been particularly high, with 100 per cent for many months.

The numerous homeroom parties sponsored in their sophomore year had been discontinued in order to promote better council parties.

Homeroom officers included student council representative, Bill Crow; alternates, Lois Fosse and Colleen Ferger; stamp representative, Ed Gibson; and junior class representatives, Donald Funk and Colleen Ferger.

The members of August Lukes' homeroom have been studying city government and have set up a model city governing body. They divided into two parties, Eastonians and Trojans, each party nominating candidates for mayor, council, assessor, and treasurer. After drawing up their platforms, they had a fierce campaign. The outcome of the election held March 1, 1945, found Mike Kalianov winning the mayoralty. The councilmen elected were Evelyn Hemsath, George Huntback, Kenneth Jensen, Deedrick Lewis and Kenneth Koger. Carl Jensen was elected assessor and Fred Greene, trasurer. These officials and the student council representatives, Beverly Kunkle and Kenneth Koger, kept "Lukesville" running smoothly.

Our Goal is the Top

In Miss Velma Older's 11A homeroom Max Lowcock served as the presiding officer the entire junior year. The first semester student council representative from this homeroom was Bob Morrissey, assisted by Polly Middleton. Second semester council representative was Sidney Lederman with Dora Fay serving as alternate. Homeroom secretaries for the year were Marjorie LaPole and Gene Martin.

Acting as a leader among the junior homerooms, this group sponsored a junior party. Setting their goal at the top they purchased war stamps near the 100 per cent quota all year. They also supported every charity drive sponsored by the school.

The representative to student council from Miss Erma Prizler's 11A homeroom was Jim Ryan with Barbara Nottger acting as alternate. Attending the junior class council meetings were Marie Reichenbacker and Wayne Seidler. Alice Ridder also attended these meetings of the junior class council as she was elected from the junior class to act as secretary. As stamp representative from room 114, Earl Roberts kept everyone conscious of the war by urging bond and stamp purchases. Phyllis Rifen ably assisted Earl in taking orders and distributing stamps on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Dead Circuits Not Allowed

During the past school year, William Waters' junior homeroom progressed normally despite wartime trends. Bill Wilcken was elected to serve as homeroom president both semesters.

First semester delegates to the student council were Jack Weldon, representative, and Charles Wheeler, alternate. Stamp council representative was Ed Wenthe, assisted by Richard Swim.

New officers elected for the second semester were Dean Winter and Jack Weldon to the student council and stamp council, respectively. Paul Worley was made student council alternate, while Charles Wheeler served in the same capacity on the stamp council. Junior class council representatives were Bill Wilcken and Velda Willer.

The class of present mid-year seniors dwindled considerably during the last few semesters, due to students accelerating their programs or joining the armed forces.

As a result, the two homerooms, Miss Laubscher's and Miss Sloan's, were consolidated into one class having less than twenty-five students.

This was a satisfactory solution, and the group has had many lively and interesting discussions led by their council representative, Herbert Miehe. Stamp sales, almost always over 90 per cent, were also carried on with Kathleen Ellis in charge.

Students find the English Conference Room an ideal locale for discussion groups and committee meetings.

With Verbs and Adjectives

Since communication as an art has received added emphasis during this war, students now see more clearly the importance of comprehending, expressing and appreciating ideas.

The East High curriculum includes English classes diversified enough to fit each individual's need. Those students interested in writing for the news sheet enroll in journalism. Gaining ease and effectiveness in speaking is the aim of oral English students.

A semester of creative dramatics for those interested in stage productions and vocational English for boys enrolled in vocational printing give varied experiences. In the senior year college prep is scheduled for those who intend to go to college, while literature and life is recommended for those entering business or industry.

As the world grows smaller, it becomes increasingly important to know and understand our neighbors. Spanish helps bridge the gap of understanding, while Latin completes the language schedule.

After setting up their unit in English literature, the members of the class begin their individual projects. East High students, along with students from the other Waterloo schools, have put on weekly radio shows from the Little Theater, wired for broadcasts by KXEL.

Artistic lines are developed by the correct arrangement of flowers.

Accent on Activities

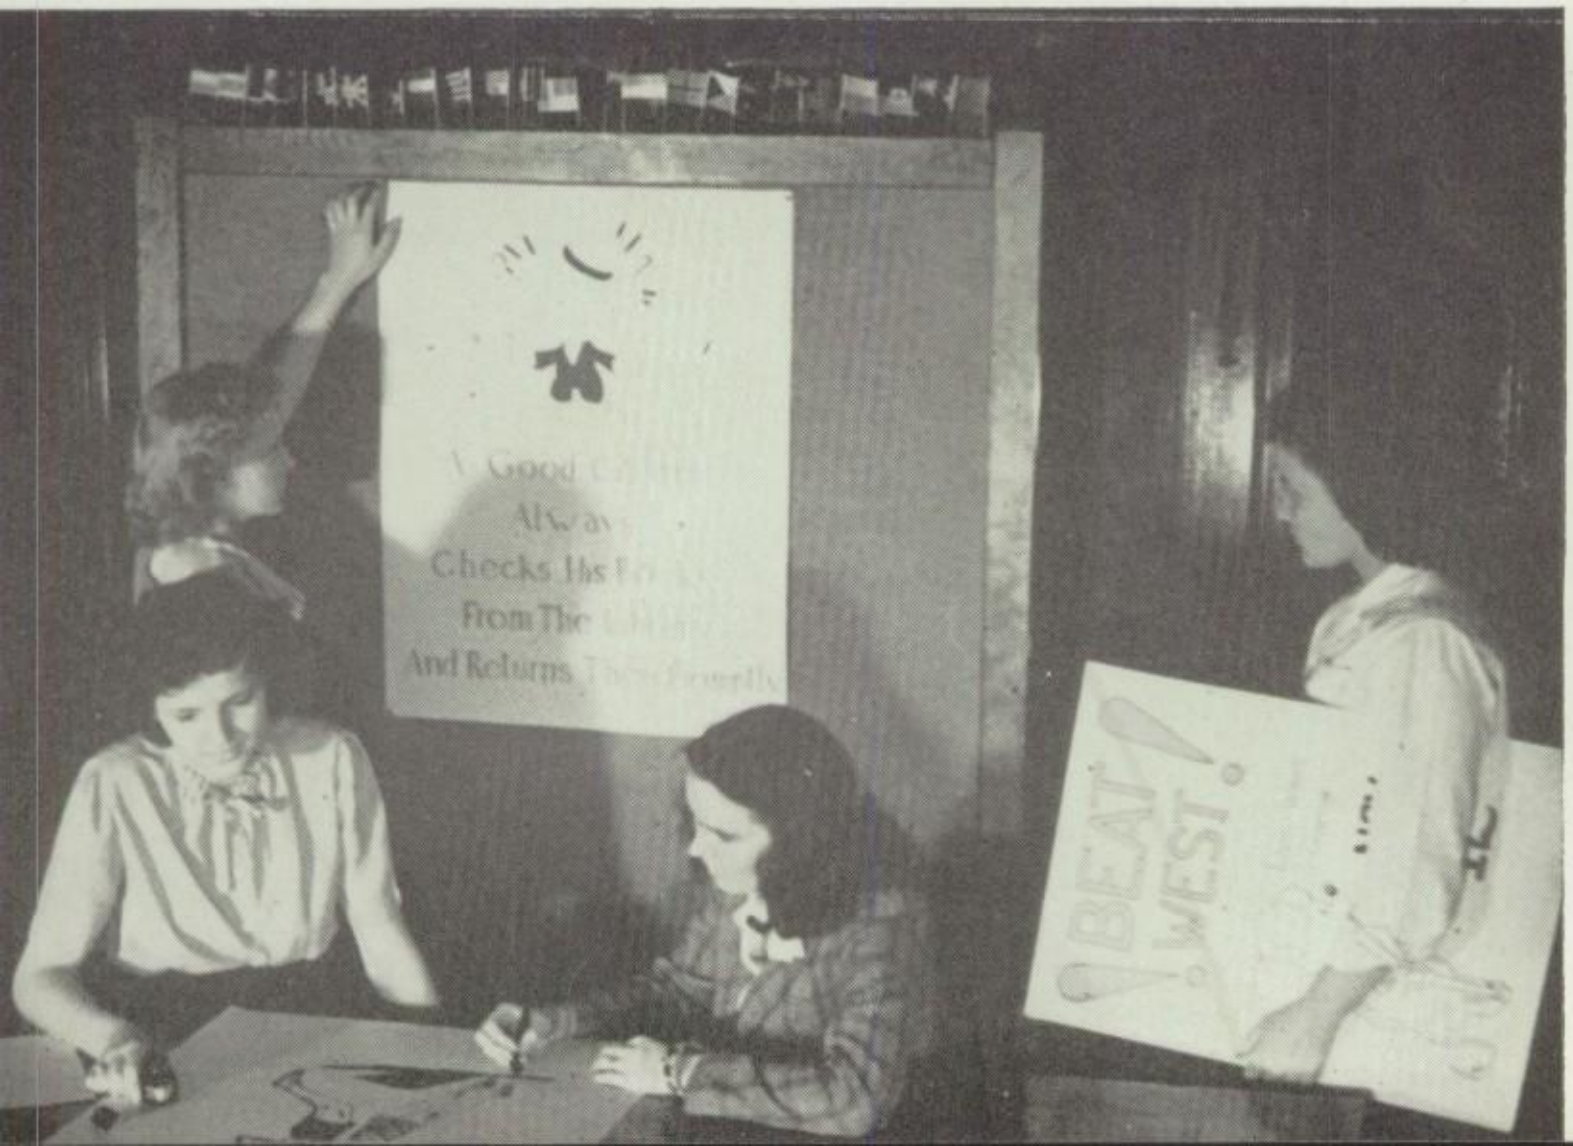
Active in school affairs and civic contacts, the students of the art department have evidenced talent along artistic lines from floral arrangements to art exhibits.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Lillian Gould, the art students entered approximately twenty paintings in the Art Show sponsored by the Art Gallery in Cedar Falls early this spring.

Special displays have been featured this year to promote reading of books that will develop understanding of world neighbors.

Collecting transcriptions and recordings has been a new feature of the library science classes this year, and on special days, such as Lincoln's birthday and Christmas, appropriate records are played in the library.

As a war project the girls have been assisting at the public library.



Library Science girls advertise school activities by posters.

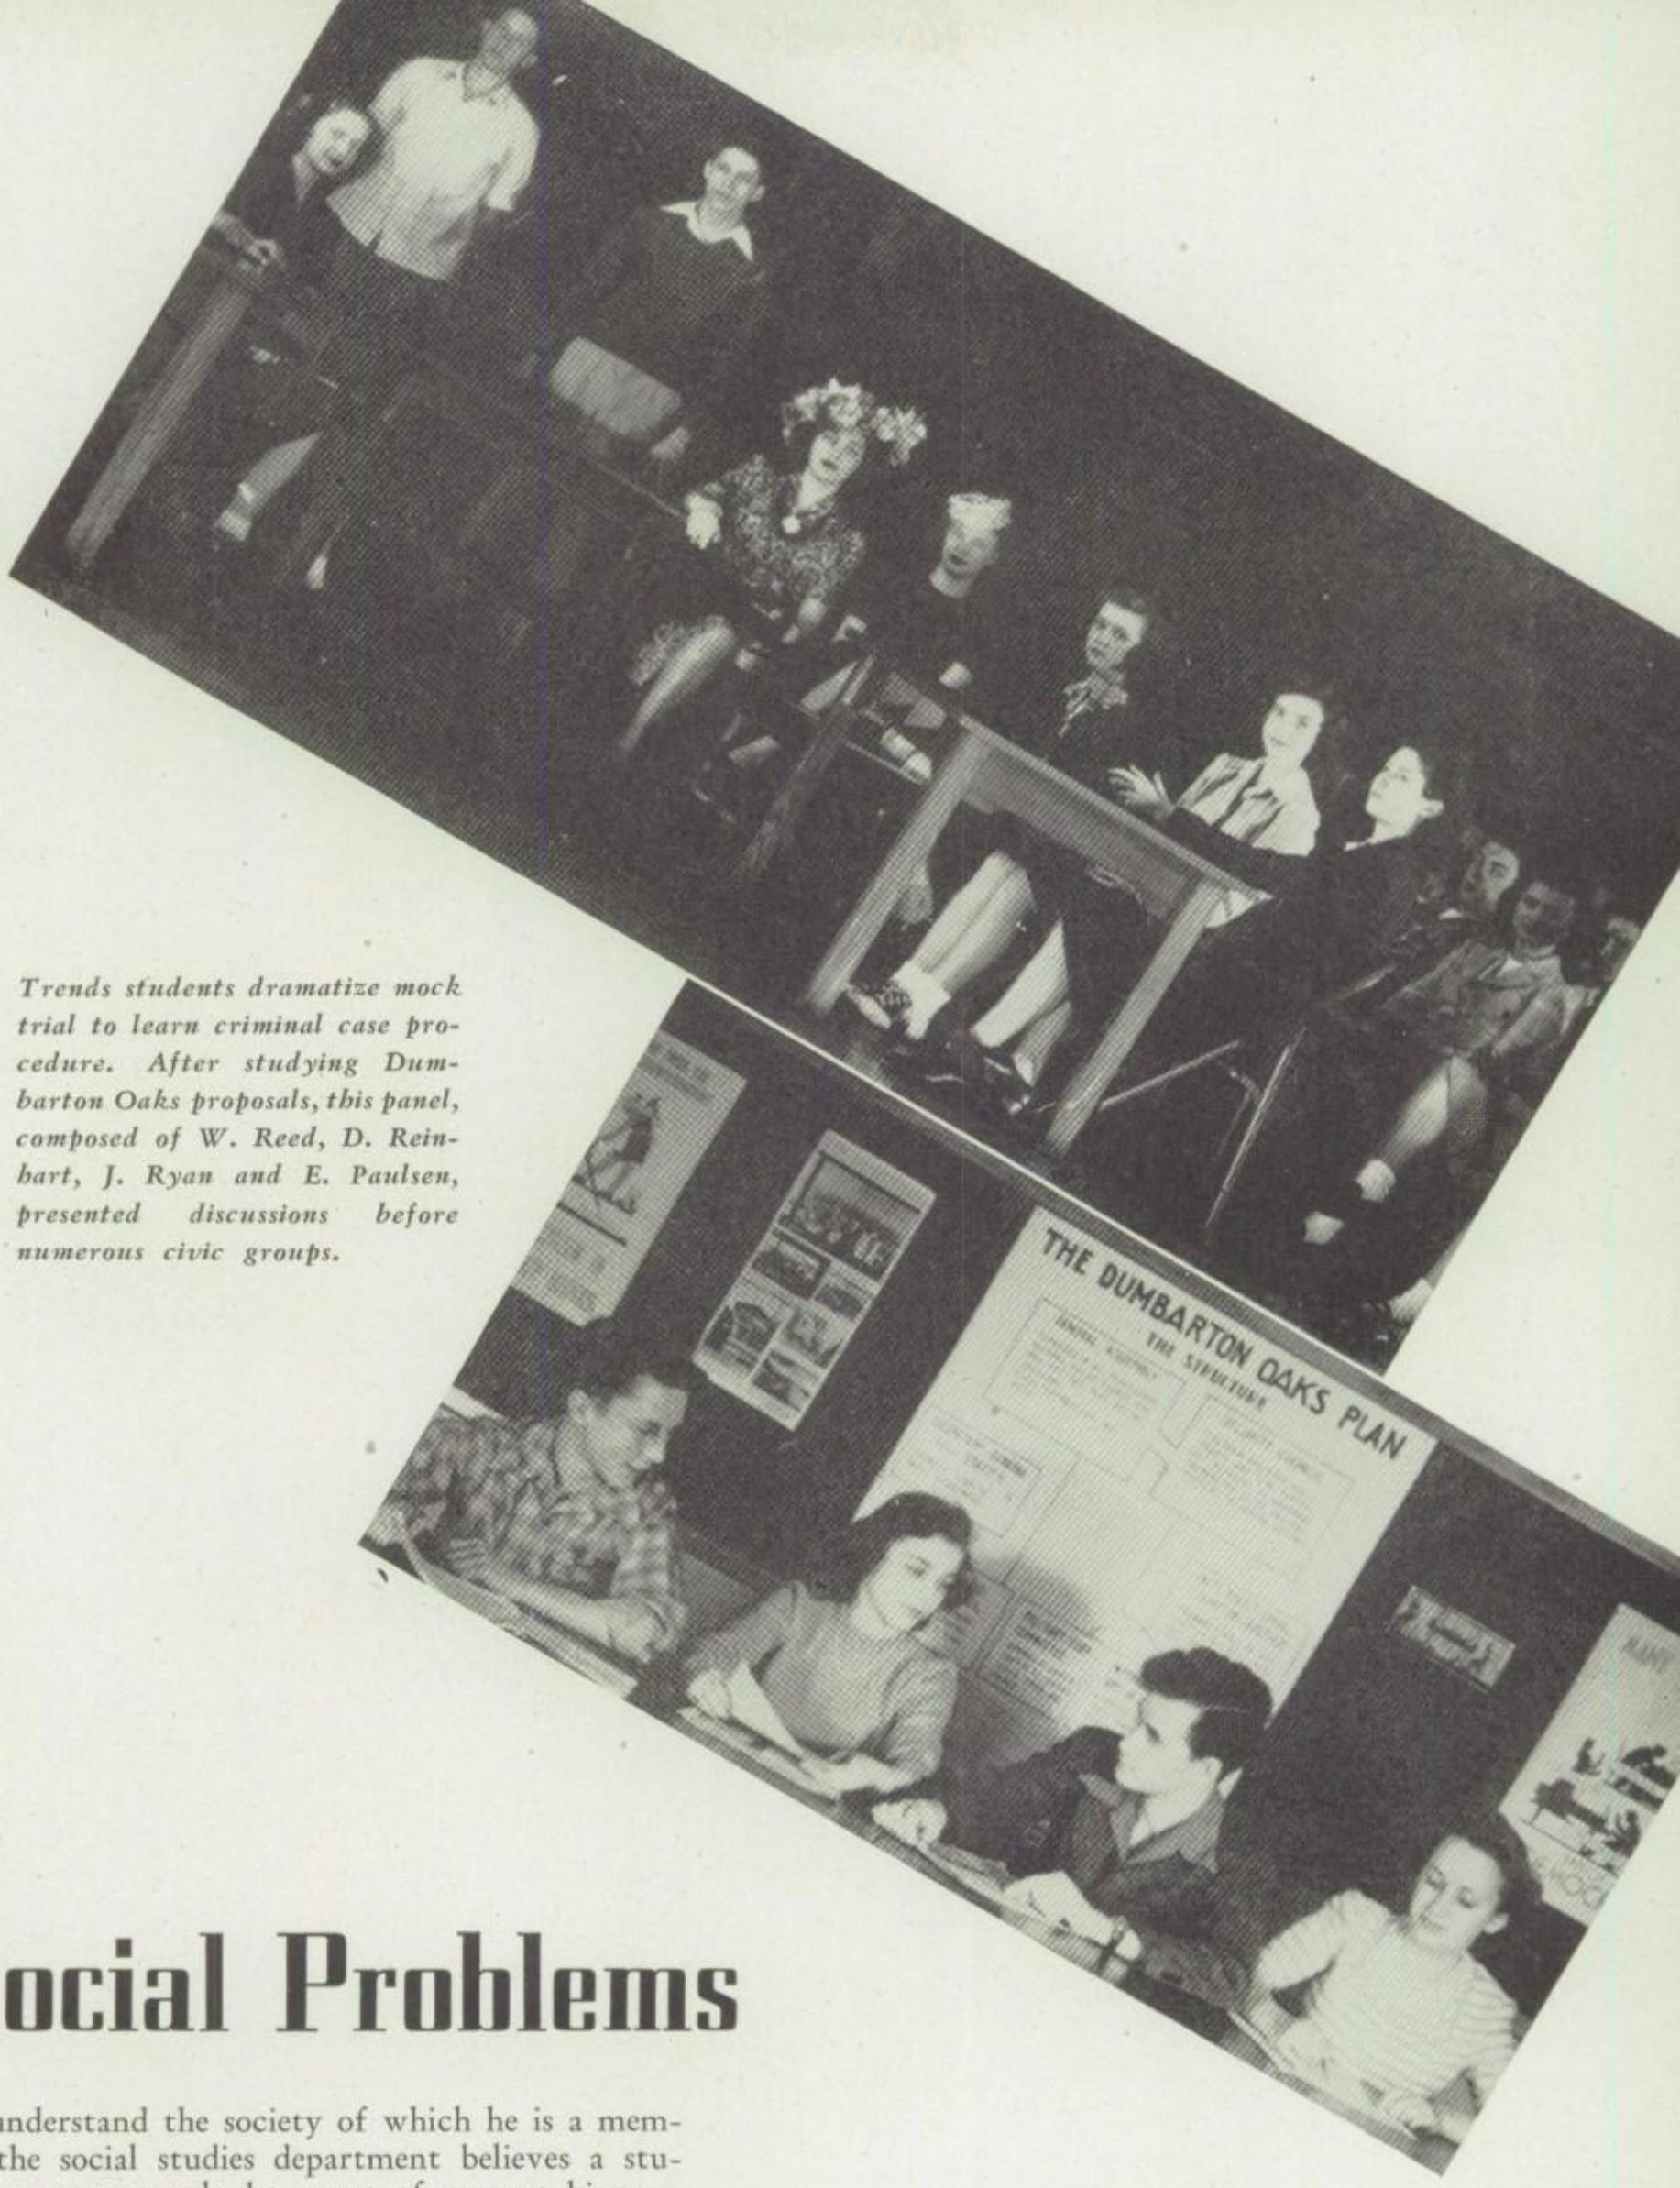
Logicians

This year's debate topic, "Resolved: That the legal voting age should be reduced to 18 years," offered logicteers the opportunity to discuss a field that concerns high school students.

The affirmative team consisted of Paul Dyer and Richard Swim; the negative, Margaret Reinville and Fanchon Aungst, with Mrs. Genevieve Madsen as director.

The debaters, augmented by Bob Charles, impromptu and extemporaneous speaker, and Pat Howell, orator, participated in the Coe College Forensic Meet.

At Teachers College, Fanchon was awarded a scholarship. The debaters also attended the district tournament at West High.



Trends students dramatize mock trial to learn criminal case procedure. After studying Dumbarton Oaks proposals, this panel, composed of W. Reed, D. Reinhart, J. Ryan and E. Paulsen, presented discussions before numerous civic groups.

Social Problems

To understand the society of which he is a member the social studies department believes a student must not only be aware of current history-making events but also be able to judge these events in the light of the past.

World history students, with Miss Marjorie Laubscher and Miss Elva Tucker, remolded their courses to fit today's problems.

American history classes studied American history, past and current, with Miss Viola Knoche, Miss Leola Strope and Leonard Raffensperger directing them.

The American trends classes, under Miss Viola Knoche, Miss Lillian Enlow, and Leonard Raffensperger, probed the problems a good citizen must be able to meet in his role of Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

Researchers

Opportunities for scientists of the future are unlimited. Basic understandings of these fields are given members of East science classes.

Mark Flanders' physics classes give the student the universal principles on which implements of war are constructed and on which the necessities and conveniences of peacetime are built.

The chemistry classes under the direction of August Lukes are learning the chemical nature of substances and the fundamental importance of chemical change in the transition of substances.

With the development of industry aeronautics begins to receive attention not only as a weapon of war but as a means of bettering humanity. George Leebl, aeronautics instructor, provides his classes with basic facts on varied phases of preflight.

Velma Older's biology classes are interesting experiences where the student learns to be an appreciative observer of his own human place on the stage of life.

Geometry has a role in everyday life in that it teaches a student to reason. Bill Waters states that logical thinking is essential in life, and geometry requires logical thinking.

Vocational math, taught by Russell Starr, and business arithmetic, with Ralph LeMoine as instructor, induct the student into accurate computation.

Toward Security

The main purpose of the co-op program is preparing students to adjust themselves to the working world.

Approximately thirty-three of the seventy students working are employed in offices in which they do general clerical, typing, secretarial and machine work. A year-around average of fifteen girls are doing sales work in local department stores under the supervision of Miss Carrie Hansen.

The industrial arts class has an enrollment of twenty-two boys who work in defense plants and machine shops with George Leebl as their instructor.

Complete records of each co-op student are kept in the commercial department. Material for these records is the responsibility of each working student. Pay reports are filed after each pay day. At the end of each month a work report representing the hours spent on each division of work is also filed. Each student is required to keep a cashbook showing income and expenditures.

Commerce classes regularly enroll approximately 450 students in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, sales and office practice.

With Artistry and Skill

That annual spring housecleaning is easy when the proper techniques are used.

The homemakers of tomorrow have received well rounded training in East's homemaking classes.

Topics of study in the first semester included personal grooming, proper dress, social acceptability, food and health. Family relationships, home management, child care and care of the apartment were discussed in the second semester.

As an influence of the war, discussions of post-war rehabilitation were carried on. Home nursing classes were also conducted.

As a part of meal planning, and also for experience, the first period homemaking class of the second semester prepared a dinner for the football team.

East High girls are truly becoming proficient in the practical applications of the skills taught them in their homemaking classes.

The boys in the vocational printing class get the equivalent of two years' apprenticeship in one school year.

Building Tomorrow's World

Vocational printing, in which one year's work is the equivalent of a two years' apprenticeship in a commercial print shop, is under the supervision of a former Waterloo printer, Fred Latta. School papers and report cards for both East and West elementary and secondary schools are some of their projects.

Vocational metals, where students are taught to operate machines for shop work, is offered to all boys who have completed metals I and II. The class is not merely a theory course, but under the direction of Milton Kemmerer is conducted as a regular shop is operated.

The boys in vocational drafting learn a skilled art useful not only in one special form of work but in numerous branches of industry. Under the guidance of Russell Starr the boys are engaged in the reading and drawing of blueprints.

Reconstruction of the world needs skilled carpenters and woodworkers. East High is qualified to supply such skilled workers from training in its woodshop under the direction of Hugh Logan.

Channeling Enthusiasms

"Will the Student Council please come to order?" Every week for the past school year Ralph Anderson, president of council, has brought the group to a consideration of the problems that face the representatives of the student body. As secretary of the council, Jeri Doran has proved efficient. Neil Williams, vice-president, has presided over many auditoriums. Treasurer has been Chuck Metcalf.

Under the direction of Miss Jean Sloan, advisor, the council this year has set as its aim placing more responsibility on students and directing them to assume their responsibility by carrying out the things they undertake.

An innovation has been the regular monthly meetings of the council held at 9:00 o'clock in the cafeteria with council members excused from their regular scheduled classes. This plan was devised to provide ample time for a thorough weighing of the problems of importance which are sometimes passed over too lightly in the before-school sessions.

Sharing Responsibilities

The committees have worked seriously and have brought numerous projects to successful conclusions. They have provided the student body with some particularly interesting as well as original auditoriums arranged by the auditorium committee, chairmaned by Polly Middleton and Neil Williams, first semester, and by Neil Williams, second semester.

The social committee achieved a new high by initiating activity night so that they could extend the types of social activities to appeal to a larger variety of students. Open house dances provided entertainment for the students after basketball games. Mrs. Arletta Kober and Miss Grata Thorne guided the committee in planning the programs. Both the social committee and the auditorium committee have made out check sheets to evaluate their undertakings.

Publicity was arranged by Colleen O'Haran under the direction of Miss Lillian Enlow.

Legislators in Action

One of the most active groups in directing all-school projects has been the citizenship committee. Advised by Miss Viola Knoche they initiated a new bell system encouraging more orderly traffic to the cafeteria. New election procedure was also set up by this committee to place greater emphasis on the intelligent selection of leaders for important posts in the school. Through primaries in each grade a nominating committee was created. They in turn presented the slate of candidates for council officers. Stamp sales and the clothing drive were additional projects successfully undertaken by this committee.

An orientation committee has been inaugurated to help the 10B's adjust to their new surroundings and make their contribution to the school. They are creating a handbook to assist them in acquainting new students with the school.

The ushering committee, under the advisorship of Miss Edna Mae Rittenhouse, took over the task of ushering at the annual swing show this year as well as at the "Nativity" and the school plays. They have also been hosts for all auditoriums to see that guests are greeted and that a friendly spirit is maintained.

Sharing our Platform

Auditoriums during the year were planned to be particularly educational, featuring emphases that would better prepare us for our places in society.

One of the most outstanding was the assembly in honor of our faculty. It came as a surprise to the teachers and in a small way showed our appreciation of them. Another was the annual Trojan Club program, which was as humorous as anything Barnum and Bailey ever staged.

Along more serious lines were the varied speakers who shared our platform. Superintendent Jack Logan and Reverend A. L. Drake did a competent job in making us realize the importance of student responsibility while we are in school and in civic life after our school days. The fine counseling and friendly personality of Dr. Harold Case will make a lasting impression in many students' thinking.

Other noteworthy speakers included a college president, a newspaperman, a Jewish rabbi and business men.

The Book Week auditorium, using as its theme the literature of the four United Nations, was a project of the college prep classes and the oral English class.

In recognition of the history-making year through which we have passed, three memorial auditoriums of a serious vein paid homage to the divine guidance necessary to bring us through to ultimate victory.

On October 27 East High School's drama department tried something new in the annals of the school when they presented a bill of three one-acts. The first play was a comedy, "The Wedding", by John Fitzpatrick. The characters included Fred Miehe, Bob Charles, Harriet Ann Rogers, Warren Harden, Henry Bruns, Margaret Ann Fox and Jeri Doran.

The second play was "Objections Overruled" by William Jones. Characters were Dick Diekmann, Dorothy Reinhart and Joyce Hellem.

Altogether different from the other two in mood was "Marching Men" by James O'Brien. Its characters were World War I soldiers, Wallace Farnham, Everett Bailey, Neil Williams, Art Hussmann, Gail Melick, Earl Mussett and Robert Anderson. The role of the nurse was portrayed by Anne Reed.

The plays were under the direction of Miss Dorothy Rambo with George Leebl advising the stage crew.

Footlights

Armistice Day brought the second year's presentation of "Pageant of American Freedom," sponsored by the social science department.

A cast of approximately 150 students appeared in six main acts. Art Hussmann as chronicler provided the continuity, with Anne Reed portraying the spirit of freedom.

The "A" choir and the band offered appropriate selections throughout the performance.

On Sunday afternoon, December 17, the traditional Christmas story was enacted in the annual presentation of the "Nativity." Its warm and sincere holiday spirit drew many regular school patrons. The production was under the direction of Miss Dorothy Rambo and Miss Edna Lenicek.

Beth Hutton took the part of the Virgin Mary, Max Lowcock played the role of Joseph, and Mary Pitze portrayed the Archangel.

The "A" choir, girls' trio and soloists joined with the cast to make a sacred memorial to the birth of Christ.

"Travel

Everything from comedy to romance, baby bonnets to fascinating formals, and 1909 Oldsmobiles to real propellered airplanes found their way onto the stage during the course of the two hour show which played to a capacity crowd on the nights of March 22, 23 and 24.

The show was promoted and staged by students under the direction of an executive committee. Student chairman of the committee was Corrine Fink. Other members included Marilyn DuBois, Art Hussman, Dick Harvey, Charles Metcalf, Marcella Bandfield, LuAnn Leland, Ed Gibson, Barbara Glasson, Susan Walters, Norman Crossley, Monica Rechtfertig, John Hopper, Harry Grove and Alice Ridder. Beginning with a mere idea, co-operative effort developed the show into a four act production worthy of a professional billing. The show included "Rippling Rhythm," "Rhythm on Rails," "Mobile Rhythm," and "Aerial Rhythm."

Much of the show's success was due to the stage and light crews, who tackled and conquered the gigantic problem of creating and building elaborate sets and effective light schemes.

Lovely costumes were produced under the guidance of the homemaking department.

"Travel In Treble" was a success because of the combined efforts of every student and teacher involved in planning and producing the 1945 version of the swing show.

Senior Thespians in "Pygmalion"

"Pygmalion," a George Bernard Shaw comedy, was presented by the East High senior class, June 2. Based on the Greek myth of the sculptor, Pygmalion, who fell in love with his creation, it is the story of Professor Henry Higgins and Eliza Doolittle, the flower girl he transforms into a lovely and cultured woman.

Seen in the leading roles were Anne Reed, as Eliza, and Roderick Briggs, as Professor Henry Higgins. Others in the cast were Fanchon Aungst as Mrs. Pearce; Don Kristensen, Doolittle; Fred Miehe, Colonel Pickering; Carrol Fox, Miss Eynesford Hill; Dick Harvey, Freddie; Jeri Doran, Mrs. Higgins; Pat Howell, Mrs. Eynesford Hill; Pat Casey, parlormaid; and Marilyn DuBois, Lois Fosse, Donna Fosse, Margaret Fox, Margaret Reinville and Jack Malek as bystanders.

Unlike the characters in the myth, Higgins failed to return the love of Eliza because he regarded his bargain only as a scientific experiment.

"Pygmalion," now on Broadway, is typical of Shaw's deliberate striving for effect.

From Farce to Fancy

Donning grease paint and wigs or arranging lights and props backstage are students interested in the field of drama. These Thespians compose the Masquers clubs, which have both joint and individual meetings.

Discussions of movies and plays and presentations of such plays as "No Means Yes" and "The Wedding" were but a few of Masquers' activities for the year. Leading the organization were Anne Reed, president; Roderick Briggs, vice-president; Pat Casey, secretary; Muriel Benson, treasurer; with Miss Dorothy Rambo acting as advisor.

A group of enthusiastic tyros have made Apprentice Masquers lively during the season. Deciding to popularize their club, the members arranged with Joan Johnson to design publicity posters. Marcella Bandfield performed the president's duties with Margaret Reinville assisting her; Marilyn DuBois was elected secretary.

New members were accepted by both clubs at three intervals, the beginning and end of the year and following the annual swing show.

For the first time in the history of Masquers the members have purchased a club pin to signify their membership in the organization.

The preparation of the 1945 "Trojan" has been under the direction of Wallace Farnham, editor-in-chief.

Layouts for the annual were planned by Rosmond Jensen and executed by Earl Mussett; Rosmond Jensen and Jack Fairholm were staff photographers, with Mark Flanders advising them and taking many of the pictures throughout the year.

Charles Metcalf held the post of circulation manager, with Neil Williams as business manager. Elda Wasserfort was staff typist, and Mary Pitze had charge of senior pictures.

The copy writers, chosen from the recommendations of the faculty, included Fanchon Aungst, Everett Bailey, Ruth Bentley, Ellen Douglas, Donna Fosse, Carrol Fox, Dorothy Fulton, Lois Griffin, Marilyn Hertlein, Beth Hutton, Tom Leeper, LuAnn Leland, Earl McDonald, Jack Meggison, Fred Miehe, Ella Paulsen, Marilyn Riggs, Anne Schoof, Elda Wasserfort, Ruth West, Mary Wheeler and Neil Williams with Carrol Fox as copy editor.

This year's "Trojan" has been prepared with the aim of recording views of our city as well as school activities, as the hometown is of special interest to those who have to leave it for the armed services or for college.

Expanding Interests

For almost all the activities of the school Camera Club has been on the spot taking interesting shots. Originating ideas, posing, taking the photos, and then developing and printing the pictures are all photographic techniques with which the members of this club experiment.

Mark Flanders, director of visual aids at East, is the sponsor of the organization. Jack Fairholm has served as president and Jackie Bender, secretary.

Keeping up with the world in the realm of science is no minor undertaking, but several students are attempting to do just that by belonging to the Science Club, active first semester. This club investigates new fields of science and clarifies past experiments by demonstrations, films, and lectures.

The officers included Earl Roberts, president; Jim Ryan, vice-president; and Bob Truax, secretary.

Under the sponsorship of the Y.M.C.A. and the advisorship of August J. Lukes the Hi-Y completed another successful year of varied activities. Assisted by the stamp council, they directed the sale of war stamps throughout the school. They combined with Friendship and other organizations in holding joint East-West dances, and carried on regular business and athletic meetings.

Officers for the second semester were Jack Meggison, president; George Huntbach, vice-president; Ralph Watson, secretary-treasurer; and Earl Mussett, chaplain.

Enriching Horizons

Friendship Club's activities took an accelerated start from the orientation meeting for new girls and the "Bang-up" party before school started in the fall.

The club's aim of providing a variety of interestingly planned programs that the girls could attend in spite of crowded war-time schedules has been attained. Among the year's highlights have been talks on good grooming by Mrs. Frank Pitze and on juvenile delinquency by Sheriff Wagner, Gloria Parker's gift-wrapping demonstration and a program by the East High debaters.

Friendship again participated in welfare work by filling baskets for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas. This year's cozies have drawn larger numbers than ever before.

Those who received Girl Reserve rings are Margaret Reinville, Alice Ridder, Beverly Kunkle, Doreta Saul, Joyce Matous, Marilyn Miller, Jeanne-Marie Empey, Marian Parks, Dorothy Reinhart, Cherie Wells, Evelyn Christensen, Doris Harrison, Joan Logan and Barbara Nottger.

The cabinet consisted of the following officers and committee chairmen: Jeanne-Marie Empey, president; Pat Casey, vice-president; Beverly Kunkle, secretary; Alice Ridder, treasurer; Margaret Reinville, program chairman; Muriel Benson, service chairman; Evelyn Christensen, music chairman; Dimity Anderson, publicity chairman; and Lois Griffin and Joan Logan, inter-club council.

On Platform and Parade

The East High band climaxed another year in a spring festival featuring Carlton Stewart, prominent Iowa high school band director, as guest conductor.

The marching band, which was led through its maneuvers on the football field by Nathan Barr, received plaudits for many of its performances in the field as well as at the pep meetings. At the end of the football season, however, Mr. Barr left Waterloo to take over a radio position.

Miss Edna Lenicek assumed the direction of the band for the remainder of the school year.

The swing band, one of the most important factors in the swing show, was composed largely of members of the band. Several musicians also appeared as soloists for P.T.A.'s, church events and civic groups. Many band members are playing with dance bands, the American Legion Band and other musical organizations.

Musicians Meet

The special event towards which much of the music work of the year has pointed was the public concert presented by the combined orchestras and choirs of East, West, Cedar Falls and Teachers College High Schools. The concert was given April 20, at East High. The hours preceding the program were scheduled with group rehearsals under the direction of guest conductors.

George Howerton, director of the choral activities at Northwestern University, divided the morning between East and West High, instructing the "A" choir and Philomel from the two schools. The afternoon was spent preparing for the evening's concert. Mr. Howerton, who had conducted the choral group at the previous music festival, was asked to return because the students so thoroughly enjoyed his work with them.

The students in orchestra also spent part of the morning rehearsing the numbers on their program with their guest conductor, Merle J. Isaac of Chicago. The final orchestration of the concert was a combined orchestra and choir arrangement of Sigmund Romberg's "Stouthearted Men."

The combined bands of the same schools presented a program at West High, April 19. The director, Carleton Stewart of Mason City High, spent the afternoon of April 19, working with the bands preparatory to their appearance.

Jerry Willey of East and William Kloster of West were featured as special soloists during the band concert.

With Bows and Strings

Both the orchestra and small instrumental groups have been entertaining Waterloo and student audiences again this year.

The orchestra made its first appearance at the all-school play October 27. They presented the audience with melodies which set the mood for the play bill which followed.

Playing for the senior class dramatic production ended the season for the members of the orchestra.

The music festival was the major event in which the orchestra participated. Popular selections of their program were the "Rosamunde Overture" by Schubert and the "Hungarian Dance No. 6" by Brahms. For a little accent on the strings, "Minuetto" for string orchestra by Dasch and "Jazz Legato" by Anderson provided a change of rhythm and tone. Romberg's "The Student Prince" concluded the recital.

As a contrast to the larger orchestral ensemble, East High had a string quartet working under a new director, Mrs. Jean Lunder. Practicing in this group every Thursday morning were Doris Murphy and Gene Allen, violins; Lola Silvers, viola; and Betty Andrews, cello.

Toward Universal Harmony

Second semester East High could boast one of the largest "A" choirs in its history. The blending of the sixty-five voices was under the direction of Miss Edna Lenicek. "A" choir met every Monday, Wednesday and Friday and devoted Tuesday and Thursday to sectional meetings.

During the Christmas season, the vocalists presented the musical background for the "Nativity" and were asked to give a program of music for the Rotary Club. On several occasions they have appeared before audiences at Grace Methodist Church.

Another highlight of their season, coming at Easter, was the invitation to sing at the Easter Sunrise Service at the Y.M.C.A. The choir also participated in several auditorium programs and gave a spring concert May 31.

Trilling in Treble and Bass

The Orioles, an all girl organiation, 10B chorus of mixed voices, and "B" choir, are working to achieve promotion into the "A" choir. Here they develop their tone qualities, their understanding of music and their individual musical abilities.

Other musical groups organized by Miss Lenicek are the boys' quartet, girls' quartet, girls' trio and the girls' sextet.

On the gridiron Coach Leonard Raffensperger produced one of the best elevens in East history. With ten returning lettermen, the experienced team met the top teams in Iowa and emerged with a record of seven victories and two defeats.

Highlights of the season were East's triumphs over East Des Moines, Mason City and West. After trailing 14 to 0 the Trojans came from behind twice to defeat the rugged Des Moines gridders, 21 to 20.

For the first time in Coach Raffensperger's career, East beat the Mason City eleven on their own field. Outstanding in this game were Jim McKinstry, Earl McDonald, Jack Brumble and Ed Gibson.

The Orange and Black were at full strength when they met their rivals from across the river. The game was highlighted by Jim McKinstry's line plunges and long gains made by John Hollingsworth. The contest was climaxed by a 76 yard sprint by Hollingsworth, and the game ended 14 to 6, East.

The season ended with East as Mississippi Valley co-champs, second in the Big Seven and City champs, the third time in four years. A new school scoring record of 187 points was set, and a new attendance record was established.

Major letter winners were Don Head, Jim McKinstry, John Hollingsworth, Don Kristensen, Jack Brumble, Elmer Hemsath, who made all-state, Dick Garthoff, Jerry Ostrander, LaVerne Beener, Wayne Seidler, Tom Leeper, Earl McDonald, Ralph Anderson, Ed Gibson, George Tesla, Melvin Potter and Jack Geist. Those winning minor letters were Don Deedrick, Tony Loveall, Cliff Zubrod, Russell Young, Rod Briggs, Bob Ryan, Vincent Cutler and Bill Pauley.

Matmen Exhibit Endurance

The 1945 wrestling team was among the finest ever produced at East High. In spite of the four defeats handed them by West and Osage, who finished first and second respectively in the state meet, the Trojans came through with eight victories.

Coach Bill Waters started with six returning lettermen and built a successful team around these boys.

The Trojans' loss of Andy Tidemann at mid-year weakened the team to some extent.

Chuck Metcalf, for the second year, was the only entry in the state meet; also for the second straight year he captured individual runner-up honors for East High.

Ten boys received major letters. They included Chuck Metcalf, Merle Shreve, Andy Tidemann and Don Kristensen, who are seniors and Jack Geist, George Tesla, Sidney Lederman, Don Smith, Don Miller and Jack Weldon.

Merle Shreve was elected team captain for 1945.

Highlights from the Hardcourt

The Trojan cagers started the 1945 basketball season by defeating the Little Tutors of Cedar Falls, 34 to 26. They then went into a scoring slump and lost the following nine games. With this to overcome the Trojans came through, winning the next three games with Roosevelt, Des Moines, Teachers High, Cedar Falls and Dike, the last in a thrilling two-minute overtime game.

Jerry Willey, the Trojans' leading basketball scorer.

The Trojans played some exciting floor games and displayed themselves as one of the best defensive teams in this part of the state.

This marked the fourth year of wartime basketball for the Trojans and the first year under Coach Glenn Stavenhagen.

Two members of the Trojan squad, Jerry Willey and Jim McKinstry, gained honorable mention on the all-state teams. Jerry, the leader in East's scoring with 209 points, was fourth highest scorer in the Big Seven Conference.

Major letters were awarded at the assembly held April 24 to Jerry Willey, Jim McKinstry, Ralph Anderson, Jack Brumble, Wayne Seidler, Ed Gibson, Bob Rohle and Chuck Thorne. Don Commack, Bill Bisdorf, Vincent Cutler, Norman Crossley, Waldon Baskerville, Ivan Warm and Don Head received minor awards.

Cinder Path Record Breakers ..

Under the coaching of Rod Gormly, the East Thinclads completed the 1945 season in whirlwind style, highlighted by their successful defense of their 1944 District track championship.

The first meet of the year took the experienced East team to Iowa City for the Mississippi Valley indoor track meet. Here the Trojans garnered fourth place, with only five points separating the first four teams. Later, the Trojans were hit hard by the loss of Dan Starr, one of the main cogs in the sprint relay teams, through induction into the navy.

East's 440, 880 and medley relays were classed with the fastest in the state. Their distance relay teams also have commendable records in tough competition throughout the state.

The Trojans participated in the Marion Relays, Teachers College Relays, Grinnell Relays and Drake Relays, winning all their dual and triangular meets.

Blue ribbons this season were evenly distributed, going to Bob Ryan, state champion in the 220 yard dash; J. Hollingsworth, speedy dash man; and Jim McKinstry, dependable weight man.

Bob Ryan, '44 and '45 state champion in the 220-yard dash.

Baseball Team Bests Opponents

The East diamond "demons," under the direction of Coach Bill Waters, have completed another successful season of baseball. With eight returning lettermen as the nucleus, the team started the season in high gear and was soon rated as one of Iowa's most promising nines, winning seventeen of eighteen games during the season.

They won their sectional tournament with three straight shutouts, but were edged out in the state finals by Roosevelt of Cedar Rapids, 1 to 0.

In one of the most exciting games of the year East beat West 5-4 in ten innings.

Because of their fine spirit and playing ability, East High can well be proud of its 1945 baseball team.

R for Vigor, Vitality

Eastonians have this year received direction in a variety of physical activities which have been designed to build sound bodies and minds. The gym classes have been under the leadership of Miss Anna Mae Wack and Glenn Stavenhagen.

Besides their direction in swimming, boxing, basketball, wrestling and volleyball, both boys' and girls' gym classes have participated in a regular routine of calisthenics. The girls' classes also received instruction in social dancing.

Under the auspices of the school nurse, physical examinations by qualified doctors were an early season preliminary.

The gym program has added to the general fun and spirit of the school as well as giving its intrinsic value.

The peppy individuals who inspired the crowd at home games consisted of four spirited students, Loren Elness, Beverly LaPole, Betty Kelly and Bob Morrissey. Assisting them in sophomore games were Jean Cottrell, Marjorie LaPole, La Vonne Evans and Pat Arildsen. They were directed by Miss Anna Mae Wack of the physical education department.

Galaxy of Stars

The Trojan Club, composed of boys who have earned major letters in football, track, basketball, baseball and wrestling, is under the advisorship of Leonard Raffensperger. The purpose of the organization is to encourage an interest in athletics and to instill a tradition of good, clean sportsmanship at East High.

Taking able charge of the Trojan Club during the first semester was President Jerry Ostrander. Jack Brumble served as vice-president, and Jim McKinstry was secretary-treasurer. The club showed marked interest and ingenuity, especially in the field of initiating new members. Highlight of the first semester was the auditorium presented by the club.

Leading the club during the second semester was Merle Shreve as president. He was ably assisted by Tom Leeper, vice-president, and Don Kristensen, secretary-treasurer.

At the end of each year the club chooses one of its members who has excelled in sports as the athlete of the year. Ralph Ridder, an outstanding athlete on the gridiron, on the basketball floor and on the baseball field, received this honor for 1944.

Orchids to the Faculty

Many teachers have watched students come and go but few have had the privilege of viewing so many graduating classes as have the group of teachers honored this year at East High for twenty years or more service in the Waterloo school system.

Miss Viola Knoche, recognized as "dean" of the East High mentors for her thirty-one years of service as sociology and history instructor, was presented an orchid by the students at an honor assembly.

Honored for over twenty years of service were Miss Leola Strope, who has served twenty-six years; Miss Florence Black, twenty-five years; and Miss Erma Prizler and Velma Older, with twenty-four years each to their credit.

Fred J. Miller, former East High principal, was recognized for his thirty-four years of participation in educational work in Waterloo.

At a special auditorium November 22, the student body presented flowers to the entire faculty for making East High the kind of a school the class of '45 is proud to call its alma mater.

Admiring Miss Viola Knoche's orchid are ex-Principal Fred J. Miller, Miss Florence Black, Miss Erma Prizler, Miss Leola Strope and Miss Velma Older, who have served a total of 164 years in the Waterloo schools.
